

looking for a word to describe you surrounded by white emptiness floated with memories.
remember the sun outside
    your shape: a shade
    an instant of life
    fading.

from red to white
a silent gap echos a moment
                    never born
                    already dead
                    it comes and goes
                    forever carrying you.

short-lived you were taken back by a springlike wave
                    to the momentary fullbloom of life.

your presente: a shooting star
time leaves the scene
you're gone, again
missing in action
all ends come.

your name passes over desire this search becomes eternal language vanishes lost in the labyrinth of your own being.

exactly nowhere:
you find your place.

a warm breeze moves this page.